Bachelor's Programme in International Business

A group of five students are sitting on a wooden dock by a lake. One student is splashing water. In the background is a modern, multi-story building with large windows. The text 'Studying International Business opens doors on all continents' is overlaid on the image.

Studying International Business opens doors on all continents

“Some call it having friends globally, some call it a professional network.
And what I think, is that both are correct.” — Terry Rim, alumnus of the program
